

Tasks

David F. Freschi

You asked us to go

Train and advise you said

Who knows all the motives?

Politics, philosophy, true stand

Against the march of evil?

And we stepped up

Soon you asked again

Help and assist you said

And we stepped up, did it well

Price rising, a tide of pain

Where were you, I saw you not

Not enough you said

Take it over, break them

And we stepped up, did it

Tide now painted red, rising

Washing shattered souls and limbs

Soldiers, innocents, homes, a country

Just drive them to the table

Get our "allies" ready

To take the fight alone

And we stepped up, did it

You brought us home

Spit on, shunned and lost

Those who stepped up

Your oath, to those who fought

By our side, to your own youth

Quickly forgotten, unleashing

A storm of destruction

We had to cut the funds, they were too corrupt

Corruption? No mirror in your house?

Our foes, sooner would I embrace

Than touch your hand

For we stepped up, and did it

Bluster and speeches

A craven heart, cannot boast
